PART I.

Choral Ballad—

"Landerkennung"

Grieg

(with Baritone Solo by Clive Carey)

THE ROYAL VICTORIAN LIEDERTAFEL

And it was Olav Trygvason,
Sailing on the north sea wide,
Bearing the hope to found a kingdom,
Far on the other side.
Yonder the cliffs appearing,
Like a battlement loom their dark crests rearing.

And it was Olav Trygvason,
Found he ne'er a spot of land,
E'en like the waves, the royal desire Shattered upon the strand.
"See!" cried the bard upleaping,
"Yonder snow-covered peaks o'er cloud bands peeping."

And it was Olav Trygvason,
Suddenly he seemed to sight
Towering temples, domes and spires, Glist'ning in virgin white.
Then vowed the king undaunted,
With his followers to tread that land enchanted.

Onward he went; the rushing streams
Heralded the coming spring.

Swayed in the stormy wind, the forest strangely was murmuring
Sounds as of churchbells chiming.
And then spake the king,
Spake as tho' dreaming;
"Here the spot to found our kingdom!
Hell! these temple walls defy thee!
Hearts are swelling, souls are yearning,
God, to thee alone be glory.

"Be my faith as yonder mountains,
Root as deeply, shine as purely;
And as these my faith strive upwards.
On to Him, the All Creator, Olav's prayer be ours to utter,
As we near the throne of mercy.
Hearts are swelling, souls are yearning
God, to thee alone be glory.
On to God! On to God!"

THE ROYAL VICTORIAN LIEDERTAFEL

(a) Holy night, oh soothe my breast
With thy solemn tranquil calm;
Give the weary wand’rer rest,
O’er his sorrows shed thy balm.

Stars brightly o’er me gleaming,
From azure fields are beaming,
They set my soul a-dreaming
Of rest above.

Hallowed sounds fall on my ear,
Wafted on the nightwind’s sighs;
Murmurings from some blissful sphere,
Echoes from love’s paradise.

On high my glances turning,
Where heaven’s stars are burning,
I dream with fervent yearning
Of peace and love.

(b) Birdling’s flying to his nest,
Wings are weary roaming,
Boats are sailing home to rest,
From the ocean’s moaning.
Twilight soothes the sun to sleep,
Far has he been coming,
Now he sinks in heaven’s bed,
In the crimson glooming.
Birdling rests in his warm nest,
Boats at anchor rocking,
Fast asleep is now the sun,
Hush, my darling’s nodding, hush.

DRAKE'S DRUM

Drake, he's in his hammock, and a thousand miles away (Captain, art thou sleeping there below?)

Slung atween the round shot in Nombre
Dios Bay,
And dreaming all the time of Plymouth Hoe,
Yonder lumes the island, yonder lie the ships.

With sailor lads advancing heel-an'-toe,
And the shore-lights flashing, and the night-tide dashing,
He sees it all so plainly as he saw it long ago.

Drake, he was a Devon man, and ruled the Devon seas (Captain, art thou sleeping there below?)

Roving tho' his death fell, he went with heart at ease,

And dreaming all the time of Plymouth Hoe.

“Take my drum to England, hang it by the shore,

Strike it when your powder's running
low:

If the Dons sight Devon, I'll quit the port of Heaven,

And drum them up the Channel as we drummed them long ago.”

Drake, he's in his hammock till the great Armada's come

(Captain, art thou sleeping there below?)

Slung atween the round shot, list'ning for the drum,

And dreaming all the time of Plymouth Hoe.

Call him on the deep sea, call him up the Sound,

Call him when ye sail to meet the foe;

Where the old trade's plying and the old flag's flying,

They shall find him ware and waking, as they found him long ago!

OUTWARD BOUND

Dear Earth, near Earth, the clay that made us men.

The land we sowed,

The heart that glowed.—

O Mother, must we bid farewell to thee?

Fast dawns the last dawn, and what shall comfort then

The lonely hearts that roam the outer sea?

Gray wakes the daybreak, the shivering sails are set,

To misty deeps

The channel sweeps,—

O Mother, think on us who think on thee!

Earth-home, birth-home, with love remember yet

The sons in exile on the eternal sea.

DEVON, O DEVON, IN WIND AND RAIN

Drake, in the North Sea grimly prowling, Treading his dear Revenge's deck.

Watch'd, with the sea-dogs round him growling,

Galleons drifting wreck by wreck.

THE ROYAL VICTORIAN LIEDERTAFEL

"Fetter and Faith for England's neck, Faggot and Father, Saint and chain,— Yonder the Devil and all go howling,
Devon, O Devon, in wind and rain!"
Drake at the last off Nombre lying,
Knowing the night that towards him crept,
Gave to the sea-dogs around him crying
This for a sign before he slept:—
"Pride of the West! what Devon hath kept Devon shall keep on tide or main;
Call to the storm and drive them flying,
Devon, O Devon, in wind and rain!"

Valour of England gaunt and whitening,
Far in a South-land brought to bay*;
Locked in a death-grip all day tight'ning,
Waited the end in twilight gray.
Battle and storm and the sea-dog's way!
Drake from his long rest turn'd again,
Victory lit thy steel with lightning,
Devon, O Devon, in wind and rain!!
*Waggon Hill, 6th January, 1900.

HOMEWARD BOUND

After long labouring in the windy ways,
On smooth and shining tides
Swiftly the great ship glides,
Her storms forgot, her weary watches past!
Northward she glides, and thro' the enchanted haze
Faint on the verge her far hope dawns at least,
The phantom skyline of a shadowy down
Whose pale white cliffs below,
Thro' sunny mists aglow,
Like noonday ghosts of summer moonshine gleam—
Soft as old sorrow, bright as old renown,
There lies the home of all our mortal dream.

THE OLD SUPERB

The wind was rising easterly, the morning sky was blue,
The straits before us opened wide and free;

We looked towards the Admiral, where high the Peter flew,
And all our hearts were dancing like the sea.
The foe are gone to Martinique with four and twenty sail,
The "Old Superb" is old and foul and slow!
But the foe are gone to Martinique, and Nelson's on the trail,
And where he goes the "Old Superb" must go.

So Westward ho! for Trinidad, and Eastward ho! for Spain,
And "Ship ahoy!" a hundred times a day;
Round the world if need be, and round
the world again,
With a lame duck lagging all the way.
The "Old Superb" was barnacled and green as grass below,
Her sticks were only fit for stirring grog;
The pride of all her midshipmen was silent long ago,
And long ago they ceased to heave
the log.
Four years out from home she was, and ne'er a week in port,
And nothing save the guns aboard her bright;
But Captain Keats he knew the game,
and swore to share the sport,
For he never yet come in too late to fight.
So Westward ho; etc.

"Now up, my lads," the Captain cried,
"for sure the case were hard,
If longest out were first to fall behind;
Aloft, aloft with studding-sails, and lash them on the yard,
For night and day the Trades are driving blind."
So all day long and all day long behind the fleet we crept,
And how we fretted none but Nelson guessed;
But ev'ry night the "Old Superb," she sail'd while others slept, Till we ran the foe to earth with all the rest.
O 'twas Westward ho! etc.

PART II.

Part Song—

"St. John's Eve"

Rheinberger

THE ROYAL VICTORIAN LIEDERTAFEL

How mild the balmy summer night!
Upon the heights what fires are glowing!
All is around us fragrant, bright,
The boatmen chant below as rowing.
The azure heav'n above is beaming,
Now rests the world, the waters glide,
A wondrous dome outstretching wide,
And earth its broad foundation seeming,
Oh, summer night! in holy light,
With perfume, light, and grace o'erflowing,
With stars like eyes of angels bright,
Their placid smile on all bestowing!

There floats a chord of love along
And earth with heav'n is thus united,
And silenced too are sin and wrong,
As love alone could here be plighted.
Oh, therefore lighted is the blaze
Upon the heights, and fire is gleaming;
Oh, therefore all the planets gaze,
And earth and heav'n alike are beaming.
Now rests the world, and as the wind
Now in the tree-tops gently rustleth,
Such peace and beauty are combined,
That man rejoiceth, prayeth, list'neth.
