PART I.

Part Song—

The Hunter's Joy

Astholz

Royal Victorian Liedertafel

HALLO! hallo! to cover!
Where waves the forest far around,
And thro' the waving branches
I hear the horn resound.
Tra-ra!

Then sound aloud the hallo
O'er forest, meadow, stream, and crag,
To startle and to follow
And track the bounding stag.

And homeward when returning,
Beneath the moon's effulgent light,
I seek my lady's window,
To sing a soft good night.

Sleep well! O my beloved,
And may no dream thy peace annoy;
My heart is thine for ever,
Thou art the hunter's joy.
Sleep well!

And then hallo to cover!
Where waves the forest, &c.

Part Songs—

- (a) Evening
(b) Serenade

Abt

Bechsnitt

Soloist: MR. G. T. MORPHET

Royal Victorian Liedertafel

- (a) DAY again his race has run,
And the tranquil night comes on,
Soothingly her pinions waving,
Heated hill and valley laving,
Spreading from her starry chart
Holy peace to every dwelling,
Holy peace to every heart.

All who rest in slumber's arm—
Void of trouble, void of harm—
Heavenly angels now are guarding.
Every danger from them warding—
Powers of evil must depart
Holy peace to every dwelling,
Holy peace to every heart.
- (b) WHEN in thy dreams thou sayest:—
"Who taps the window there?"
Then shall the wind make answer:
"I, and a message bear.
Thy lover e'er for thee doth long,
I bring thee greeting, kiss and song."
Slumber soft, slumber soft.
- When in thy dreams thou sayest:
"What shineth there so clear?"
Then shall the moon make answer:
"I, and a blessing bear.
I come from one who night and day
For thee doth ever watch and pray."
Slumber soft, slumber soft.
- When in thy dream thou sayest:
"What doth so soft bewail?"
Then shall a bird make answer:
"I am the nightingale.
Of love and longing sing to thee
Until thine eyes the morning see."
Slumber soft, slumber soft.

Students' Evening Song

Fischer

Royal Victorian Liedertafel

'NEATH the vine tree's garlands bending
Spread, dear maid, the festive board,
With thy fair hands on us tending;
Speeds the day with joyous ending,
Thee we'll pledge with glad accord.
Slumber deep is reigning o'er us,
We alone are now astir
Clink the glasses round in chorus,
Gaudeamus igitur.

Each in turn the tale recount then,
Whence his wandering steps have strayed,
From the distant vale and mountain,
By the mossy dell and fountain,
All in nature's best array'd.
All seems dancing now before us,
As the golden wine we pour,
Joining in the merry chorus,
Gaudeamus igitur.

Blessings rich from heav'n descending,
Rest upon the students free.
Loud in song our voices blending,
Beauty's praise on high ascending,
Praise of maidens true like thee.
Long may heav'n's rich blessings flowing
On our hills and valleys pour,
Where the fruitful vine is growing,
Gaudeamus igitur.

Aria—

Mon cœur s'ouvre à ta voix Saint-Saëns

("Softly awakes my Heart.")

(From the Opera Samson and Delilah.)

Madame Agnes Janson

(Translation.)

SOFTLY awakes my heart, as the flowers awaken
To Aurora's tender zephyr!
But say, O well-belov'd, no more I'll be forsaken;
Speak again, O speak for ever!
O say that from Delilah you never will part!
Your burning vows repeat—vows so dear to my heart.

Ah, once again do I implore thee,
Ah, once again then say you adore me,
Ah, I here implore thee,
See, I implore thee!

E'en as to whisp'ring winds sways the waving grain,
To and fro so gently moving,
So sways my trembling heart, consoling all its pain,
To thy voice so dear, so loving.
The arrow in its flight is not swifter than I,
When, leaving all behind, to your arms I fly!

Part Songs—

Songs of the Sea C. V. Stanford

(Soloist—Mr. HORACE STEVENS)

Royal Victorian Liedertafel

DRAKE'S DRUM.

DRAKE, he's in his hammock, and a thousand miles away
(Captain, art thou sleeping there below?)
Slung atween the round shot in Nombre Dios Bay,
And dreaming all the time of Plymouth Hoe.
Yonder lumes the island, yonder lie the ships,
With sailor lads adancing heel-an'-toe,
And the shore-lights flashing, and the night-tide dashing,
He sees it all so plainly as he saw it long ago.

Drake, he was a Devon man, and ruled the Devon seas,
(Captain, art thou sleeping there below?)
Roving tho' his death fell, he went with heart at ease,
And dreaming all the time of Plymouth Hoe.
"Take my drum to England, hang it by the shore,
Strike it when your powder's running low;
If the Dons sight Devon, I'll quit the port of Heaven,
And drum them up the Channel as we drummed them
long ago."

Drake, he's in his hammock till the great Armadas come,
(Captain, art thou sleeping there below?)
Slung atween the round shot, list'ning for the drum,
And dreaming all the time of Plymouth Hoe.
Call him on the deep sea, call him up the Sound,
Call him when ye sail to meet the foe;
Where the old trade's plying and the old flag flying,
They shall find him ware and waking, as they found him long ago!

OUTWARD BOUND.

DEAR EARTH, near Earth, the clay that made us men,
The land we sowed,
The heart that glowed,—
O Mother, must we bid farewell to thee?
Fast dawns the last dawn, and what shall comfort then
The lonely hearts that roam the outer sea?

Gray wakes the daybreak, the shivering sails are set,
To misty deeps
The channel sweeps,—
O Mother, think on us who think on thee!
Earth-home, birth-home, with love remember yet
The sons in exile on the eternal sea.

DEVON, O DEVON, IN WIND AND RAIN.

DRAKE in the North Sea grimly prowling,
 reading his dear Revenge's deck,
Watch'd, with the sea-dogs round him growling,
 Galleons drifting wreck by wreck.
"Fetter and Faith for England's neck,
 Faggot and Father. Saint and chain,—
Yonder the Devil and all go howling,
 Devon, O Devon, in wind and rain!"

Drake at the last off Nombre lying,
 Knowing the night that toward him crept.
Gave to the sea-dogs round him crying
 This for a sign before he slept:—
"Pride of the West! what Devon hath kept
 Devon shall keep on tide or main;
Call to the storm and drive them flying,
 Devon, O Devon, in wind and rain!"

Valour of England gaunt and whitening,
 Far in a South-land brought to bay.*
Locked in a death-grip all day tight'ning,
 Waited the end in twilight gray.
Battle and storm and the sea-dog's way!
 Drake from his long rest turn'd again,
Victory lit thy steel with lightning,
 Devon, O Devon, in wind and rain!

* Waggon Hill, 6th January, 1900.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

AFTER long labouring in the windy ways,
 On smooth and shining tides
 Swiftly the great ship glides,
Her storms forgot, her weary watches past!
Northward she glides, and thro' the enchanted haze
 Faint on the verge her far hope dawns at last.

The phantom sky-line of a shadowy down,
 Whose pale white cliffs below,
 Thro' sunny mist aglow,
Like noonday ghosts of summer moonshine gleam—
Soft as old sorrow, bright as old renown,
 There lies the home of all our mortal dream.

THE "OLD SUPERB."

The wind was rising easterly, the morning sky was blue,
The straits before us opened wide and free;
We look'd towards the Admiral, where high the Peter flew,
And all our hearts were dancing like the sea.
The French are gone to Martinique with four and twenty sail.

The "Old Superb" is old and foul and slow!
But the French are gone to Martinique, and Nelson's on the trail.

And where he goes the "Old Superb" must go.
So Westward ho! for Trinidad, and Eastward ho!
for Spain.

And "Ship ahoy!" a hundred times a day;
Round the world if need be, and round the world again,
With a lame duck lagging all the way.

The "Old Superb" was barnacled and green as grass below,
Her sticks were only fit for stirring grog;
The pride of all her midshipmen was silent long ago,
And long ago they ceased to heave the log.
Four year out from home she was, and ne'er a week in port,
And nothing save the guns aboard her bright;
But Captain Keats he knew the game, and swore to share the sport.

For he never yet came in too late to fight.

So Westward ho! &c.

"Now up, my lads," the Captain cried, "for sure the case were hard

If longest out were first to fall behind;
Aloft, aloft with studding-sails, and lash them on the yard,
For night and day the Trades are driving blind."
So all day long and all day long behind the fleet we crept,
And how we fretted none but Nelson guessed;
But ev'ry night the "Old Superb," she sail'd while others slept.

Till we ran the French to earth with all the rest.

O 'twas Westward ho! &c.

PART II.

Double Chorus—

Oedipus

Mendelssohn

Royal Victorian Liedertafel

Thou comest here to the land, O friend,
Fam'd for fleet-footed steeds and blooming meadows :
Thou standest now in Colonos' grove,
Where the voices of nightingales
Resound, floating in dulcet strains
Thro' their temples of verdure ;
Where the thick-woven ivy clings,
Spreading over the sacred aisles ;
Where, in security, ripens the fruitful vine,
Unscathed by beam or stormwind.
And here roameth the bounteous god,
Gay and good Dionysos, ever greeted in lays,
Sung by the nymphs who rear'd him.

Fair and fragrant at dawn of day,
See the beautiful heaven-bedewed Narcissus,
The flow'r that shone in the goddesses' crowns,
Worn by them in the days of old.
See the Crocus array'd in gold ;
Hear the slumberless waters,
While they glide in Cephissus' tide.
Still meandering day by day
Over the plains, bearing streams ever pure along,
Enriching all the bowers
Embosomed in the favour'd land ;
Ever loved by the tuneful choir of Muses,
And Cythera, whose zone is golden.

Here, too, bloometh a tree
Crowned with a fruit not found in Asia ;
Nor on Dorian plains doth it appear,
Gracing the island where the Pelops
Held sway : yet here it freely springeth ;
Rever'd by friends, and feared by foes,
In native splendour it blossoms for Athens.
Behold, ours is the rich oil-dropping olive ;
Aged and youthful, noble and peasant,
Never wantonly harm this holy tree,
Guarded and cherished, it stands secure,
Everheeded by Morian Jove.
Lov'd and watch'd by Minerva.

Grateful, let me extol
Heaven's richest gifts deigned to my country ;
Presented by the Pow'r making our State
Fam'd for its wealth, honour, and glory :
Our land and sea steeds, rein and rudder-guided ;
O Chronos' son, by them we stand pre-eminent.

Mighty god Poseidon,
 Thou didst give us the rein formed for the courser;
 Guided thus, or curbed, he yields obedience.

Part Song—

Thou art my Dream Hofmann
Royal Victorian Liedertafel

THE drooping flow'rs their buds are closing,
 The silver stars keep watch above;
 The world in tranquil sleep reposing,
 My wakeful bosom yields to love.
 While here in hopeless grief I languish,
 Could I behold thy vision bright,
 Then would I fondly breathe my anguish,
 Thou art my dream thro' stilly night.
 Tho' all unmoved by love's appealing,
 No kindling passion lights thy brow,
 No voice of love thy heart revealing,
 Still all the world to me art thou.
 Bend softly down, ye golden tresses:
 Beam kindly once, bright orbs of light;
 List, lady, list to love's distresses,
 Thou art my dream thro' stilly night.

Songs—

(a) Snow Sigurd Lie

(b) On the Mountain C. Janson

Madame Agnes Janson

- (a) THERE is nought on earth so still as the snow!
 Shrouding all the world in silent glamour;
 Muffling ev'ry sound: on the frozen ground
 Hushing ev'ry footfall's noisy clamour.
 There is nought on earth as pure as the snow!
 Swan's down loosed from winter's pions spreading,
 On the hand a flake doth a teardrop make,
 Through the crystal air white thoughts are threading.
 Nought so lulling on the earth as the snow!
 Sinking light as slumber on the weary,
 Till the silence so into sound doth grow
 Fine as silver bells, as music ringing.

(b) Ah, me! Up here it is bright and gay,
 On the mountain!
 The zephyr rippling in sprightly play
 On the mountain!
 Our feet are dancing, our eyes are bright,
 Our heart rejoicing with new delight,
 On the mountain!
 Come up, come up! From the vale ascend
 To the mountain!
 Refreshing odours with zephyrs blend
 On the mountain!
 The grass is studded with flowers untold,
 The sun is shedding her rays of gold
 O'er the mountain!
 Ah, dearest boy of mine! come to me
 On the mountain!
 Day after day I have longed for thee
 On the mountain!
 Come, let us talk till the sun has set,
 And in our loving our grief forget
 On the mountain.

Part Song—

The Frog Cantata

Hennig

Royal Victorian Liedertafel

In the lakes and flowing rivers
 Dwells a race of free good livers;
 Always laughing, swimming, croaking;
 Always singing, always joking;
 And is heard the whole day long,
 Loud and clear their ringing song,
 Quack! quack! Reck! eck! eck!
 Eyes like diamonds brightly flashing,
 Limbs on lake and riplet splashing,
 Sporting, playing, chatting, laughing,
 Feasting richly, nectar quaffing,
 And is heard the whole day long,
 Loud and clear their ringing song,
 Quack! quack! Reck! eck! eck!
